Hanover planning board denies zoning change for Dollar General

Traffic safety concerns voiced over proposed store location

A newly proposed Dollar General Store on West State Road 56 in Hanover won't be happening after the town's Plan Commission chose not to proceed with changing zoning from residential to business at its meeting on Wednesday.

Will McDonough, project engineer at Paul Primavera and Associates of Corydon, said the proposed zoning change for the 3.17 acre lot at 4146 West State Road 56 would be for a 12,480-square-foot Dollar General Store that would have "more food items and be more kind of a grocery store."

After much opposition was voiced by several nearby residents, many living along the nearby Goldenrod Lane just north of property, the motion to deny was made by Debbie Kroger, a member of the plan commission who also serves on the town council. "I make a motion that we don't proceed with changing the zoning at this time until there's some type of solution that the citizens of Hanover can be safe."

The vote was unanimous with only Todd Bruther abstaining due to family connections with the property owner.

Morgan Hensley was first to voice opposition, citing the existing need for a stoplight at Kuntz Road and State Road 56 before any more businesses are allowed there. "That is the most dangerous intersection that I have ever seen," she said. "I live in Golden Rod. I will kick and scream and throw a fit if we can't get a stoplight there. My children's lives are in danger every time we pull out on that street."

At the same time, Hensley said she does not oppose bringing businesses into the community to improve the local economy. "I'm all for it, but I'm not for putting my children's lives in danger on a daily basis trying to get out when that area there is horribly dangerous." Citing several wrecks that have occurred there in the past she noted, "I'm begging you. I have 15-year-old children. I'm terrified at the thought" of putting another business there. "Anything without a stoplight, you're asking for death."

Treva Shelton, a member of the plan commission and the town council, said the town has conducted a traffic study and requested that the Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) put a stoplight at the location. "We've begged them to it, and they won't do it," she said.

Builders for Christ

New Hanover Baptist going up fast with support of Christian construction group

BY BOB DEMAREE

For more than six decades, Hanover Baptist Church has worshiped on Main Street in Hanover until the congregation decided it was time for a new location, and later this year the church will be in its new home on State Road 56 just east of town.

"This has been brewing for some time," said the Rev. J.D. Traylor, pastor of the church. "The Lord laid it on our hearts to make a move and relocate."

The church has owned its new site at 3894 West State Road 56 for almost a decade, and has occasionally utilized it, including a tent revival there just last year. But now the time has come for the church to make the move — with Builders of Christ bringing in about 900 volunteers from all over the United States to do the construction work beginning May 14.

Builders for Christ is an organized group of churches that come together every summer to do mission work by constructing church facilities for existing Christian congregations.

"This organization makes things possible that wouldn't be possible without their help," said Traylor. Cost to construct the new church is approximately $1.7 million, a figure Traylor said is fluid dependent on what the final expenses end up being. But by utilizing Builders for Christ, he estimates that as much as $750,000 in labor costs will be saved.

The new worship center will have a capacity of 409 which is an increase over the 300 seat capacity at the current church building.

And while Hanover Baptist Church will be slightly larger with room to grow, Traylor said the church has approached its relocation "prayerfully and

Scott files as Democrat for Council At-Large

Jefferson County Democrats have filled another candidate vacancy on November's municipal general election with Jennifer Scott filing for City Council At-Large.

Scott will join Pete Backus as the Democrat's two At-Large candidates, who will compete against Republicans Jim Bartlett and Joshua Wilber.

Scott's filing leaves the Democrats with three vacanies to fill until the noon deadline on July 3 — Clerk-Treasurer, Council District 3 and Council District 4.

Other Democrat candidates include Dan Dattilo, Mayor; Derek Alexis Hughes, Council District 1; Christian Bowyer, Council District 2; and Edward Stigall, Council District 5.

Other Republican candidates are Bob Courtney, Mayor; Katie Rampy, Clerk-Treasurer; Patrick Thevenow, Council District 1; Carla Krebs, Council District 2; Lucy Dattilo, Council District 3; Joshua Schafer, Council District 4; and Joel Storm, Council District 5.

Free music options abound in Madison

The RiverRoots Revival music and arts festival is happening this Saturday on Mulberry Street downtown, and for the first time ever, this amazing event is totally FREE to the public. You can show up any time between noon and 6:30 p.m. and enjoy arts, kids activities, local-brewed beer, and plenty of live music.

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

Musical acts throughout the afternoon will include Michael Kelsey, Catfish Seminar, Paleface and Mo, Reynolds, Hewitt & Tuttle, Ellie Ruth Band and 67 Sun. Then in the evening, there will also be a ticketed show at Red Bicycle Hall featuring Lilly Hiatt, with Paleface opening.

RiverRoots will take place on a closed section of Mulberry Street, just north of Main Street. It will be fun, festive, and totally nostalgic for the good old days of past RiverRoots weekends. Maybe it will even cloud up and rain for a few minutes, just for old times sake!

But this free event got me thinking about the larger music scene in Madison, the one that takes place week-in and week-out in our many bars, clubs and venues. Ninety-nine% of the live music in Madison is totally free. I think we all need to really appreciate what a great opportunity and asset this represents.

Just looking at this week as I'm writing this, starting with the Open Mic on Tuesdays at the Taproom and ending with the regular Sunday shows at Rivertown Grill, there are TWENTY live music events in Madison, every one of them totally free and open to the public. In addition, there is an exciting ticketed show at Red Bicycle Hall on Saturday night.

Which brings us to another point I need to make. Just because I'm praising all the free music in town doesn't mean I'm against ticketed shows or paying a cover charge. All live music costs money, and when a venue brings in an out-of-town act or chooses to charge at the door to help cover costs, that's totally cool, of course. I'll gladly pay to see great music, any time.

But I will say this to all my loyal readers out there. The only way this level of free musical options will continue to thrive and grow is if we support it. When the venue owner doesn't charge at the door, he or she is counting on a good music-loving crowd to fill the place and offset the cost of the band.

So grab some friends, check out the music calendar, and pick a show

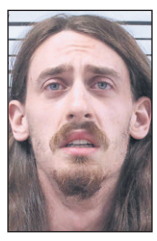
Man facing charges for mushrooms and marijuana possession

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A traffic stop for speeding led to the arrest of a Madison man on Friday on narcotics related-charges.



Erik Mathison McKay II

Erik Mathison McKay II, 22, Madison, was stopped by Madison Police Patrolman Andrew Gibbs in the 1000 block of West Second Street and the odor of marijuana was noticed coming from McKay's Ford Focus. With probable cause established to search McKay's vehicle, Gibbs and officer Kyle Potter located a narcotic drug (mushrooms), marijuana and paraphernalia associated with the use and distribution of drugs.

McKay was taken into custody without incident, and faces preliminary charges of Possession of a Narcotic Drug, Possession of Marijuana (over 30 grams) and Dealing in a Scheduled Drug, all Level 6 felonies; and Possession of Paraphernalia and Reckless Driving (Speeding), both Class C Misdemeanors.

with wisdom as well. God gives us common sense," Trayor said, adding, "We're standing on the tip toes of faith, and that's important to us. But our people have responded in an astounding way by their generous giving in this, and we're so grateful for that."

Hanover Baptist, which has approximately 189 members, has been connected to Builders of Christ since the organization helped build the church's gymnasium in 1997. Since then, Hanover Baptist members have traveled to support Builders for Christ and help construct other church facilities.

Construction on the new Hanover Baptist initially wasn't anticipated for this summer because Builders of Christ were scheduled for a building project for a church in Ohio. "For some reason that did not develop, so they were looking for a place to come to, looking for a project," said Traylor.

The initial plan for the new Hanover Baptist facility was to adapt an existing 5,440-square-foot building into the church's worship center. But Builders for Christ wanted a bigger project than that. "They wanted to do something, but what we wanted was on a smaller scale than what they were geared up to do, so they said they would come if we could upscale and add this new building," he said.

So, now a new 9,236-square-foot multipurpose building is being constructed that will be utilized both as the worship center and an activity building. Instead of pews, there will be chairs that can be pulled out to allow the church to have a space for its Hanover Baptist Athletics (HBA) program that has a basketball ministry, Traylor said. "We had about 175 kids in that program this year; that's vital to us."

Meanwhile, the original 5,440-square foot building will become a children's center under the leadership of Angie Lunsford, the church's children's minister. And the existing house on the front part of the property will be developed into church offices and Sunday School rooms along with space for the church's youth group led by associate pastor Kinzer Havill.

The new church building sits on 15 acres that was once the home of Richard and Nancy Clem, who after retiring wanted to move closer to their adult children in Indianapolis. "We did not solicit this property. They came to us. They said they knew we were looking for a place," Traylor said.

The church's move took a step forward last fall when Bob and Sue Cline purchased the current Hanover Baptist Church building. "They intended to have a business plaza" but now there are new plans for the building that could convert it into apartments with plans to sell it to Pettit Properties pending final zoning approval.

Hanover Baptist Church, founded in 1955, has been located since April 21, 1957 at 151 West Main St., Hanover, the former site of Hanover Methodist Church that moved to a new building at 220 East Lagrange Road on the same date, later to renamed Hanover United Methodist Church in 1968.

That church building on Main Street, however, was destroyed by fire shortly after Hanover Baptist moved into it, and a dedication for a new building was held May 14, 1961. Through the years there have been expansions at Hanover Baptist with an educational wing built in 1975, a move into a new sanctuary in 1984 and then, with the assistance of Builders of Christ, the gymnasium called the Grace Center in 1997.

Traylor expects a bit of sadness in leaving the Main Street building that's been an integral part of the life of the church for more than 60 years. "We might have a tear or two the last day we go out of there," he said.

Traylor, who has been pastor of Hanover Baptist since 1982, cited visibility, growth potential and accessibility as three big reasons the church wanted to move to the State Road 56 location. "We were kind of off the beaten path," he said. "Even though we were in Hanover, there were a lot of folks that didn't know where we are. So, that visibility means something."

Also, Traylor said the church was land-locked at its current 2-acre site with a trailer park behind the church and other buildings surrounding the property. "We didn't know where to go," he said. But at the new location, the church has 15 acres with room for plenty of parking and space to expand.

Finally, Traylor said while the church remains near Hanover, the new location also moves it closer to "the bulk of the population in the county. Folks in Hanover go to Madison all the time", putting church also in proximity of both Madison's hilltop and downtown while also being near the entrance to Hanover College.

Havill said he has been impressed by how members of Hanover Baptist have come together to make the project happen. "The teamwork and cohesiveness of our church has been shocking; how everyone comes together, how we have people doing different things, and how unified we are. It's been amazing seeing the Lord's people come together."

Rick Utenis is overseeing the project, working for both Hanover Baptist Church and Builders for Christ. He was on site preparing for the volunteers before they arrived by coordinating, planning and ordering supplies. It has been vital for Utenis to effectively organize each step of the construction, noting teams have been scheduled to show up with specific tasks and materials needing to be in place when they arrive. "If the trusses aren't here when the specialized team comes to put it up, it's not good," he said.

Preparation work took place ahead of the arrival of the volunteers. Sedam Contracting did excavation and concrete work, and other local contractors are involved for plumbing, electric and other specific tasks including R.J. Plumbing, Smedley Electric and Glass Unlimited.

Utenis said over a course of 14 weeks through the end of August there will be 60 to 120 Builders for Christ volunteers coming weekly to work on the project.

Traylor said the influx of people will benefit the local economy. "They'll stay in local hotels, patronize local restaurants and stores, they'll eat on site a couple of meals a day but that food will be bought in local groceries. So, there's a ton of money that is coming through the community, through hundreds of people," he said.

Once the last of the Builders for Christ volunteers are done in late August, Utenis will stay on site to wrap up whatever else needs to be done with the help of Hanover Baptist Church congregants. They anticipate that Hanover Baptist will be worshiping in its new location by October.

Utenis, of Litchfield, Connecticut, has served in his role with Builders for Christ for about 12 years. He was a residential home builder for many years before taking on the role of overseeing Builders for Christ projects. "I just felt God was calling me to leave my business and do this," he said.

Utenis provides supervision and direction for volunteers with varying levels of abilities. "Not all are skilled but they all have willing hearts and they're all willing to work. And they have a great time," noting it's often like a reunion as people come together from past building projects.

Traylor said there is a professional expertise and feel to the work. "It's a well-orchestrated machine," he said. "It's not just a bunch of amateurs bringing their hammers and nails."

Builders for Christ was founded by Lawrence Corley, an architect from Birmingham, Alabama, and a member of Brookwood Baptist Church. Corley, who has been on site over the last couple of weeks, explained Builders for Christ began in 1981 with the first project being Adamson Baptist Church in Adamson, Oklahoma, with a goal of building churches to "expand God's kingdom throughout the United States."

Traylor said Builders for Christ has grown through the years with volunteers often joining from church facilities built by the organization.

"Those that were helped become the helpers," he said. "It's been over 40 years so they have a huge pool of people for resources to send," Utenis said. "And it's so exciting because once people come, they have their friends come the next year."

Hanover Baptist is the 81st church to be constructed by Builders for Christ with Corley noting there have been some years when the organization built three facilities and other years when they built two. The greatest undertaking was in 2010 when Builders for Christ constructed a new chapel complex for Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary — a 1,000-seat, 38,000-square-foot facility in Kansas City, Missouri.

Corley noted that people from 17 states and 70 churches are expected to be involved in construction of the new Hanover Baptist Church. In addition to Indiana, there will be people from Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and Wisconsin.

He said all the volunteers pay they own way. "We donate our travel to come," said Corley. "We donate our food to feed ourselves. We rent our own rooms at our own expense so the church basically doesn't have to do anything to get us here for a week, other than to coordinate and be prepared with materials."

In addition to the donation of labor, Builders for Christ provides assistance in other ways. They brought 300,000 nails of different lengths for different purposes that are being provided as a donation to Hanover Baptist. Additionally, the organization worked to ensure the church is built with high quality materials. Corley said the lumber is No. 1 Select.

"It's the finest lumber that exists in our nation" which Builders for Christ obtained in Mississippi. "It has small knots or none, it's not warped and doesn't have much of any bark on it." He said the lumber dealer sells it for his "out-of-pocket costs" then it's transported to site by Builders for Christ. "It's an incredible bargain and the finest lumber that exists in any lumber yard. It's giving the church and God our very best."

"We really don't do this just for Hanover Baptist Church, though we have come to love them. We're doing this for God, and we would not do this for anybody else. Everybody here who is serving is not wealthy, although some of us are. Everybody is here giving to God. And what happens when we leave, we make a simple statement to this church, that to share who Jesus is as Savior and Lord to your own community."

What's after that for the Builders for Christ? "We're going on to the next project," said Corley, to continue the work of expanding God's kingdom.

PICKLES

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, June 2, the 153rd day of 2023. There are 212 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 2, 1997, Timothy McVeigh was convicted of murder and conspiracy in the 1995 bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City that killed 168 people. (McVeigh was executed in June 2001.)

On this date:

In 1924, Congress passed, and President Calvin Coolidge signed, a measure guaranteeing full American citizenship for all Native Americans born within U.S. territorial limits.

In 1941, baseball's "Iron Horse," Lou Gehrig, died in New York of a degenerative disease, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis; he was 37.

In 1953, the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II took place in London's Westminster Abbey, 16 months after the death of her father, King George VI.

In 1961, playwright and director George S. Kaufman, 71, died in New York.

In 1962, Soviet forces opened fire on striking workers in the Russian city of Novocherkassk; a retired general in 1989 put the death toll at 22 to 24.

In 1966, U.S. space probe Surveyor 1 landed on the moon and began transmitting detailed photographs of the lunar surface.

In 1979, Pope John Paul II arrived in his native Poland on the first visit by a pope to a Communist country.

In 1981, the Japanese video arcade game "Donkey Kong" was released by Nintendo.

In 1999, South Africans went to the polls in their second post-apartheid election, giving the African National Congress a decisive victory; retiring president Nelson Mandela was succeeded by Thabo Mbeki (TAH'-boh um-BEH'-kee).

In 2011, a judge in Placerville, California, sentenced serial sex offender Phillip Garrido to life in prison for kidnapping and raping Jaycee Dugard; Garrido's wife, Nancy, received a decades-long sentence.

In 2016, autopsy results showed superstar musician Prince died of an accidental overdose of fentanyl, a powerful opioid painkiller.

In 2020, defying curfews, protesters streamed back into the nation's streets, hours after President Donald Trump urged governors to put down the violence set off by the death of George Floyd. Police said four officers were hit by gunfire after protests in St. Louis that began peacefully became violent.

Ten years ago: Egypt's highest court ruled that the nation's interim parliament was illegally elected, though it stopped short of dissolving the chamber immediately.

Five years ago: The number of homes destroyed reached 80 in an eruption of Hawaii's Kilauea Volcano. (The eruption would eventually destroy more than 700 homes.)

One year ago: After a school shooting in Uvalde, Texas that killed 19 students and two teachers, President Joe Biden delivered an address to the nation about the latest round of mass shootings in an attempt to increase the pressure on Congress to pass stricter gun limits after such efforts failed in the wake of past violence. A man who blamed his surgeon for continuing pain after a recent back operation bought an AR-style rifle and opened fire hours later at a Tulsa, Oklahoma medical office, killing the doctor and three other people in an attack that ended with him taking his own life.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Saturday, June 3, the 154th day of 2023. There are 211 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 3, 1989, Chinese army troops began their sweep of Beijing to crush student-led pro-democracy demonstrations.

On this date:

In 1621, the Dutch West India Co. received its charter for a trade monopoly in parts of the Americas and Africa.

In 1888, the poem "Casey at the Bat" by Ernest Lawrence Thayer was first published in the San Francisco Daily Examiner.

In 1935, the French liner Normandie set a record on its maiden voyage, arriving in New York after crossing the Atlantic in just four days.

In 1937, Edward, The Duke of Windsor, who had abdicated the British throne, married Wallis Simpson in a private ceremony in Monts, France.

In 1962, Air France Flight 007, a U.S.-bound Boeing 707, crashed while attempting to take off from Orly Airport near Paris; all but two of the 132 people aboard were killed.

In 1965, astronaut Edward H. White became the first American to "walk" in space during the flight of Gemini 4.

In 1977, the United States and Cuba agreed to set up diplomatic interests sections in each other's countries; Cuba also announced the immediate release of 10 Americans jailed on drug charges.

In 1989, Iran's spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, died.

In 2008, Barack Obama claimed the Democratic presidential nomination, speaking in the same St. Paul, Minnesota, arena where Republicans would be holding their national convention in September 2008.

In 2011, physician-assisted suicide advocate Dr. Jack Kevorkian died at a Michigan hospital at 83. Actor James Arness (TV: "Gunsmoke"), 88, died in Brentwood, California.

In 2016, heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali died at a hospital in Scottsdale, Arizona, at age 74.

In 2020, prosecutors charged three more police officers in the death of George Floyd and filed a new, tougher charge of second-degree murder against Derek Chauvin, the officer who was caught on video pressing his knee to Floyd's neck. (Chauvin would be convicted on all charges.) Defense Secretary Mark Esper took issue with President Donald Trump's threats to use the full force of the military to quell street protests.

Ten years ago: The prosecution and defense presented opening statements in the court-martial of U.S. Army Pfc. Bradley (now Chelsea) Manning over the biggest leak of classified material in American history. (Manning was found guilty at Fort Meade, Maryland, of espionage and theft and was sentenced to up to 35 years in prison; her sentence was commuted after seven years by President Barack Obama.)

Five years ago: President Donald Trump's attorney, Rudy Giuliani, stressed that Trump's legal team would fight any effort to force Trump to testify in front of a grand jury during the special counsel's Russia probe; Giuliani also downplayed the idea that Trump could pardon himself.

One year ago: Russia's invasion of Ukraine reached its 100th day. President Vladimir Putin said when he launched the invasion that his forces would not occupy the country, but Moscow seemed increasingly unlikely to relinquish the territory it had taken in the war, and the Kremlin-installed administrations in both regions talked about plans to become part of Russia.

Today's Birthdays: The former president of Cuba, Raul Castro, is 92. Actor Irma P. Hall is 88. Rock singer Ian Hunter (Mott The Hoople) is 84. World Golf Hall of Famer Hale Irwin is 78. Actor Anne Winters is 29.

Organizers hope Saturday's revival will take RiverRoots

BY BOB DEMAREE

When the much-loved RiverRoots folk festival ended in 2019, it left a void for fans of folk music and art. After doing without their annual spring folk fix, fans have an opportunity to attend a one-day RiverRoots Revival Saturday to fill some of that void and possibly resurrect the event for the future.

"There was huge bunch of people that loved RiverRoots. It was in people's hearts and a lot of people were devastated" when it ended in 2019, said local musician and music lover Jane Vonderheide. "It had a really magical vibe. When you got there, it was like you were stepping into a different world for the weekend. It was just a neat world, and there's that spirit still floating around. We have fond memories. That's what we're hoping to revive."

While RiverRoots is being revived, the festival won't be exactly the same. Whereas in the past it's been staged at Bicentennial Park, this year's venue will be Mulberry Street between Main and Third streets and at the Red Bicycle Hall.

And instead of being a two-day event that charged admission, it'll be a one-day event with afternoon outdoor activities that are free (but donations will be appreciated) followed by a ticketed night-time concert at Red Bike by headliner Lilly Hiatt for $25 at the door or $20 advance available at https://www.madtixevents.com/

Kindred Folk Society is leading the effort to bring back RiverRoots with a committee of six carrying the load of work including Vonderheide, Pam Brown, Grace Christie, Tony Novello, Jack Wilhelm and Amber Youngblood.

The essence of RiverRoots is that it's a combination of music and art. "Our ideal is to have it to be kind of magical, have music and art, and bubbles and fun," said Brown. "It's just people having a good time."

And, yes, there will be bubbles with a bubble machine that will put out bubbles. "One thing that was always in RiverRoots (in past years at Bicentennial Park) was the cottonwood blowing but we don't have a cottonwood up here on Main Street," said Vonderheide. "So, we have bubbles."

The stilt walker that was a part of past RiverRoots events will also be back and there will be food trucks, arts and crafts, and a special kids activity area. In the kids area, there will be sidewalk chalk and a collaborative art piece for several children to do together.

The festival area on Mulberry Street will mesh all the elements of RiverRoots Revival with the stage on the south end of the festival area at Main Street and the food area on the north end to Third Street. In the middle will be arts and crafts, and the kids area. There will be picnic tables throughout the festival area and those who plan to stay awhile are encouraged to bring their own chairs.

The opening ceremonies will be at noon with the first musical act being for kids at 12:20 p.m.—Michael Kelsey of Indianapolis. "He so wonderful. He's super interactive with kids. He often gets them to sing or to play on his guitar, gets them involved in making noise or makes up songs with their words in them. He's really clever," said Brown.

After that, there will be performances at both the outdoor stage on Mulberry Street and the Red Bicycle Hall stage.

Performing on Mulberry Street at 1:40 p.m. will be Catfish Seminar followed by Ellie Ruth Band at 3 p.m. and the Madison-based 67 Sun at 4:30 p.m.

Performing at the Red Bicycle Hall stage will be Reynolds, Hewitt and Tuttle at 1 p.m., Kelsey at 2:15 p.m. and Paleface & Mo at 3:20 p.m. Paleface & Mo will also be the opening act for Hiatt's ticketed performance that night.

Vonderheide noted a factor in the demise of RiverRoots in its final years was the misfortune of bad weather that included untimely rain and even a tornado one year.

Hiatt, a Nashville-based musician and daughter of singer-songwriter John Hiatt, said she was at RiverRoots in 2018 when a downpour of rain stopped her performance just as she took the stage. This year, no matter the weather, that won't be an issue with her performing indoors at Red Bicycle Hall.

"Having the Red Bicycle Hall as a rain option was pretty important to us," said Vonderheide. Additionally, she said there have been arrangements made that if there is rain that the outside stage will be moved to the Electric Lady. "If it does rain, the show will still go on," she said.

RiverRoots was established in 2006 as the Ohio River Valley Folk Festival as an idea by John Walburn and Jeff Garrett. After Garrett's death, Walburn carried it forward with the help of Steve Thomas. In 2012, the event's name was officially changed to RiverRoots.

Support from the local businesses and community organizations have made it possible for this year's RiverRoots Revival. "We're so thankful for the people who stepped up to sponsor this year," said Vonderheide.

But the future is uncertain. There will be receptacles throughout the festival area for people to make donations to provide funds to support the festival into next year. "We really appreciate donations, especially if they want to see the festival happen again," said Vonderheide.

This year, she said it's a "grassroots movement to start little and build it back. It's going to take a lot of support. If you loved it," they would also like to have more volunteers to help organize and execute the event in the future.

"We don't know where it's going from here," said Vonderheide. "We promised to make to make it feel special," and that's what they're hoping will be the take away from all who attend this year's event.

So far, it's all been good. "We already feel love. There's definitely a buzz of excitement."

MUSIC

to attend this weekend. Starting June 1, the First Street Saloon is going smoke-free, so as of now the only venue in town that is still smoky is The Central, plus the fraternal clubs, like the VFW and the American Legion.

And if you don't like the bar scene, that's cool. You can check out the music at the Farmers Market Saturday morning, the bluegrass jam at the fairgrounds in the afternoon, or Thomas Family Winery Saturday evening. On Sunday evening you can take in the Evans Family Singers at Sallie's Small Batch Ice Cream on Second Street. It's like a Hoosier version of the Von Trapp singers from Sound of Music!

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

First Street Saloon is now smoke-free! This is a totally cool little neighborhood bar in easy walking distance from the main music district, with a pool table and a super friendly vibe. So those of us who like to breathe free can now enjoy their regular weekly line-up of live music, usually on Saturday nights. I'd also like to point out that on Saturday there are once again TEN live music options throughout the day. Oh, starting now through the rest of the summer and fall, there also will be live music on the sidewalks of downtown Madison every Saturday afternoon. If anybody knows of any other small town anywhere in the U.S. with that kind of live music scene, I want to hear about it. But I say "Madison stands alone!"

Hensley also questioned the need for another Dollar General Store. "Are we working on having more Dollar Stores than we have churches in Jefferson County?" she asked. "There seem to be Dollar Stores everywhere."

There are two other Dollar General Stores in close proximity to the 4146 West State Road 56 property — one in Hanover at 415 West Lagrange Road on the west side of the town and another just to the east of town at 3691 Clifty Drive at the intersection of State Road 256 and State Road 62. There is a third store on Madison's hilltop at 601 Clifty Drive and one in downtown Madison on Jefferson Street as well as a Dollar General Store in Deputy that's next door to a Family Dollar.

Ronald Bysiek, another Goldenrod subdivision resident, noted there was a wreck last year that resulted in a fatality in front the Urgent Care at 4152 West State Road 56. "We don't need anymore of that. I didn't actually see it happen" but went over afterwards. "Nobody wants to see anybody covered up with a sheet when this guy got killed."

Claude Phillips, who said he owns property on State Road 56 just north and east of the area proposed for the Dollar General, said there have been efforts to reach out to INDOT to deal with safety issues there. "We've been after Indiana," he said. And with "all the traffic coming in and out, and you know what they told us, 'You don't have enough accidents.' How many bodies are we going to have to pull out of the road? It's just unbelievable. I can't even believe we're discussing this. I don't mean to be upset, but I am."

Tracy Shelton, another Goldenrod subdivision resident, said she grew up in Hanover, and State Road 56 "has always been a danger even when I was in high school" with the traffic that goes through that area. "I cringe every day of another death up there. Adding another business with all those people coming and going on that stretch of road in a 50 mph zone" creates even more of a danger. "Someday if a light does go in, it's a possibility that traffic could be controlled from there."

Hanover resident Warren Auxier characterized that section of State Road 56 as "one of the most heavily traveled two-lane roads in Jefferson County" which he said is good for businesses but "also a problem for being able to get in and out."

Treva Shelton said she goes to the McDonald's restaurant at Kuntz Road and State Road 56 for coffee, and "she's a nervous wreck trying to get home" from pulling out at that intersection. "I can't imagine another place there."

Kroger said that in the last five years there have been four fatalities in that stretch of road from the Urgent Care to the Hanover Library on Madison Avenue.

In other business, the Commission received an application from Pettit Properties requesting a zoning change from B-2 commercial to R-32 for four parcels of property at 151 West Main St. to renovate the Hanover Baptist Church into apartments. The plan commission unanimously recommended that the zoning change be made by the town council which has final approval.

The church, which is constructing a new building on State Road 56, was purchased by Bob and Sue Cline last fall but Pettit Properties has an agreement to purchase the building and convert it into apartments if zoning changes are approved.

Rodney Pettit, owner of Pettit Properties, said the refurbished building would have approximately 30 apartments and include both one-bedroom and two-bedroom units. "We're going to try to make them nicer apartments," he said.

Pettit said there will be a few exterior changes for entry and windows, but for the most part they will be minimal. "We're going to take the steeple down, and un-church it, because we're going to turn it into apartments."

The footprint of the building will remain the same with all apartments constructed into the existing building with nothing added on the outside. However, there may be garages built on the back section of the two-acre property and there will be interior changes that includes having two floors of apartments in the area that currently houses the church gymnasium.

Susan Williams, 205 West Main St., Hanover, said she had concerns about "putting that many people in an apartment in that area. What other improvements are going to have to be made to sustain it?" Williams also said she "struggles with changing the church on the outside because it's pretty as it is. I struggle with what kind of people will be moving in" based on the $700 to $950 monthly range Pettit surmised might be charged to renters. "I personally struggle with it and I am not for it."

"Our goal is not to build low income housing. We like to build nicer things," Pettit said, adding that the rent number were just an estimate, and could be a different amount. "If we can get more, we will. That was a starting point."

Ben Sommer, who lives across the street from the building at 154 West Main St., said Hanover struggles with commercial property, and "we have commercial property already and if you change it, you're not going to go back to commercial property. I think there's lots of opportunity for businesses there — multiple businesses, not just one."

Board member Stan Totten noted Hanover Baptist Church has had a for sale sign in front of the church for many years. "It's a pretty good property and built pretty well, and maintained. So, as a town, I think we would like to see something good happen to that property."

He added, "We've talked before that there's an acute housing problem in the area, and much more housing is needed." He said the apartments could bring more population into the town that would be beneficial. "I can see some advantages in having more people living in our community. It's just the question is, if this is going to work."

In addition to needing final approval by the town council for the zoning change, further approvals will be needed for conditional use from the town's Board of Zoning Appeals, along with necessary building permits and approvals by the State of Indiana for meeting its requirements.

2A BASEBALL SECTIONAL

No-hitter not enough as Southwestern falls

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

AUSTIN — Jamison Lewis pitched arguably the best game of his high school career on Monday. But he wasn't perfect and that proved to be his downfall.

Lewis struck out 12 batters and fired a no-hitter, but a costly error in the second inning and control problems in the sixth were the difference as Southwestern fell 2-0 to Austin in the semifinals of the Class 2A Sectional Baseball Tournament on Monday.

Other than the sixth inning, Lewis was flat-out dominate and won his head-to-head matchup with Austin ace Brady Watts. But Watts, who struck out 14 batters and walked two, scattered Southwestern's four hits and came away with the shutout win to end the Rebels' season.

"We said before the game we kind of knew, just knowing both teams, that every pitch was gonna matter," Southwestern coach Dan Thurston said. "Two great pitchers going head-to-head at each other. You never like to lose, obviously, but it was still a fun game to be a part of."

What few mistakes were made in the game could be counted on one finger. It was Southwestern that blinked first in the second inning when Austin's Parker Bruce hammered a shot into right field that the Rebels' Brady Cook was able to get his glove on the ball but not bring it in. Bruce ended up on third base and came home a batter later when Xander Richie grounded out to second base.

Austin added its insurance run in the second inning when Lewis had his only bout of wildness. The junior hit the first two batters he faced and, after a sacrifice bunt, intentionally walked Watts to load the bases and set up a double play opportunity. But those hopes were dashed when Lewis walked the next batter to force in a run before getting the next two outs to end the inning.

Other than than that inning, Lewis was nearly perfect.

"We couldn't ask for more from him. In fact, I went over his pitch count before the last half inning and thought if we tie it here in the bottom seventh, he was gonna go out for the eighth," Thurston said. "He was at 105 pitches so we were gonna send him back out there. He wasn't showing any signs of of getting tired or weakening at all."

As good as Lewis was, Watts was just as good. The University of Southern Indiana signee had only a handful of trouble spots on the afternoon but got out of each easily. A strikeout ended a third-inning threat when the Rebels put two runners in scoring position and another strikeout in the seventh ended Southwestern's final hopes at a comeback.

Like Lewis, Watts would have been able to come back for the eighth inning had their been one after pitching only 106 pitches.

"We have the most respect for Austin that you can have. Every time we play them, it's a tight game and it's two teams that are fundamentally sound and two heavyweights kind of exchanging blows," Thurston said. "They just got us with one and we weren't able to answer back."

All four of Southwestern's hits were singles with Austin Jenkins, Mason Lichlyter, Brady Cook and Braxton Lewis collecting the safeties.

Austin's season came to an end Monday evening on a 4-2 loss to Brownstown in the sectional championship. The Eagles closed the season with a 22-9 record.

Southwestern ends its campaign at 17-12 and while the overall record wasn't as good as the past two years, the Rebels still went 11-1 to win the Ohio River Valley Conference and felt like they were in good position to win their first sectional title since 1999.

Southwestern graduates four seniors — Jordan DeAtley, Tanner Jacobs, Mason Lichlyter and Keegan Rogers — and Thurston is going to miss the group terribly.

"Even though I have only been here three years, as I told the guys, I think of them as mine because their freshman season they lost to COVID. So I'm the only high school coach they've had," Thurston said. "This is such a great group of guys and it goes beyond what they do on the diamond. The leadership that they bring and enthusiasm that they bring and just the attention to detail were great to see. We're definitely gonna miss those guys."

Madison golfers close regular season with Jennings County win

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison's golf team closed out the regular season with a victory over Jennings County Wednesday on the road.

The Cubs shot a 315 as a team, led by Clayton Benkert who was the medalist with a 77. Landon True shot a 79, Henry Ashley a 79, Jackson Lynch an 80 and Luke Barron an 80.

Madison will now take aim at its first sectional title in three years when the Cubs host the IHSAA Sectional at Sunrise Golf Course on Monday. First tee is set for 11 a.m.

Reds rally to beat Red Sox 5-4, beat Boston in series for 1st time since 1975 Fall Classic

BOSTON — Spencer Steer hit a two-run homer to break a seventh-inning tie and the Cincinnati Reds took advantage of Rafael Devers' throwing error to come from behind and beat the Boston Red Sox 5-4 on Wednesday night.

Kevin Newman, Matt McLain and Nick Senzel had two hits apiece for the Reds, who have won five in a row, taking the first two of their three games in Boston to beat the Red Sox in a series for the first time since the 1975 World Series.

Ian Gibaut (5-1) pitched one inning of perfect relief for Cincinnati, which trailed 2-0 and 3-1 before scoring one in the sixth and three unearned runs off Josh Winckowski (2-1) in the seventh to take a 5-3 lead. Buck Farmer pitched the ninth, retiring Devers on a deep fly to center to end it and earn his first save.

Boston led 3-1 after five and 3-2 through six before Luke Maile led off the seventh with a hard chopper to third base and Devers one-hopped the throw past first baseman Justin Turner. Newman and McLain singled to load the bases, then one run scored on Jonathan India's double play groundout.

Steer cleared the Green Monster with his eighth homer of the year to make it 5-3.

SEC coaches' opinions on schedule debate range

BY RALPH D. RUSSO
AP COLLEGE FOOTBALL WRITER

DESTIN, Fla. — Kirby Smart sounded ready to be done with the Southeastern Conference's great schedule debate.

"The most overrated conversation in the world," the Georgia coach said Tuesday.

As is tradition, the Southeastern Conference took over a resort hotel on the Florida Gulf Coast for its spring meetings this week. The hottest topic is what the nation's toughest football conference plans to do with its schedule starting next season when Texas and Oklahoma join to make it a 16-team league with no divisions.

The options are sticking with an eight-game slate, but shifting to one annual rivalry game instead of the current two, or going to nine games with three annual rivals. The SEC has been trying to figure this out for more than a year.

"I'm a history teacher by trade," Missouri coach Eli Drinkwitz told reporters. "And every time I come to one of these meetings I'm blown away that the 13 colonies actually formed a union, but we can't agree on an eight- or nine-game schedule."

Either way, punting divisions fixes one big problem for the SEC: Infrequent meetings between some league members.

The most glaring example is Texas A&M has played Georgia just once since joining the SEC in 2012, and the Aggies are still awaiting a visit to College Station by the Bulldogs.

"Four years, you will play everybody, home and away," said Smart, whose team has won two straight national titles. "I get the traditional rivalries, you have three, you have two, you have one. You have this, you have that. You guys need something to write about bad when you start talking about this."

Despite Smart's ambivalence, the eight-or-nine conversation does matter a lot to fans.

With an eight-game schedule that protects only one annual opponent, Auburn-Georgia — the Deep South's oldest rivalry, played 127 times — Alabama-Tennessee, and maybe the renewal of the Texas-Texas A&M rivalry, are among the notable matchups likely to become every-other-year games.

Aggies coach Jimbo Fisher said when the Longhorns arrive, he would like Texas A&M's annual rival to be Texas. But that would mean shelving Texas-Oklahoma every other year.

"LSU's become a great rivalry for us," Fisher said. "But as you go traditional rivalries of A&M you'd say Texas."

While LSU coach Brian Kelly stopped short of fully committing to a number of conference games, he said he wouldn't want to give up playing Alabama every year and the only way to do that would be a with a nine-game conference schedule.

The SEC football coaches and athletic directors met separately on Tuesday and will gather together Wednesday, with the hope of finally coming to a decision before meetings wrap up on Friday.

Drinkwitz is one of the few coaches to take a stand, siding with nine.

Kentucky's Mark Stoops is probably the most vocal supporter of sticking with eight, noting that the school's annual in-state rivalry with Louisville of the Atlantic Coast Conference means the Wildcats are already locked into at least nine games against Power Five opponents.

There is no guarantee the schedule question will be settled this week. Commissioner Greg Sankey has said there is still time for more consideration. He even acknowledged the possibility of a short-term solution, landing on a model but with a commitment to it for only a year or two.

Sankey met with football coaches Tuesday to discuss a multitude of topics, including the schedule.

"I sensed a trust level in our decision-making process," Sankey said.

Alabama coach Nick Saban has promoted playing schedules with nothing but Power Five schools, and seemed to be a supporter of nine conference games over the past year.

Now, he seems concerned about what it might mean for Alabama's nonconference schedule in coming years. The Tide has home-and-home series with Wisconsin, Florida State, Ohio State and Notre Dame — among others — scheduled between 2024-30.

"If we go to nine games, we'll have to unwind that," Saban said. "My deal has always been to play more SEC games because we couldn't get more people to schedule. So now I think there are more people who are willing to schedule. So having a balance is probably most important."

Sankey has said he would like to "land the plane" this week, but also recalled the last time the SEC expanded. Texas A&M and Missouri were granted membership in the fall of 2011 and began playing in 2012, giving the conference less than a year to figure out the football schedule.

"So we got a lot of reserves in the wings of that airplane," Sankey said. "But we're going to be more timely than that."

REDS

The Red Sox loaded the bases in the bottom half, but Alex Young got Turner to ground out to short to end the threat. Duran's double made it 5-4 in the eighth, but Lucas Sims got Raimel Tapia on a lineout to center and then struck out Valdez to strand Duran at second.

REDS 9, RED SOX 8

Jose Barrero hit a grand slam to lift the Cincinnati Reds to a fourth straight win with a 9-8 victory over the Boston Red Sox on Tuesday night.

Will Benson had three hits to back Ben Lively (3-2), who pitched 5 2/3 shutout innings. He struck out six for the Reds, who blew it open with a five-run seventh inning. During the four-game winning streak, Cincinnati has had 10 or more hits and scored at least eight runs.

The Reds were 0-for-14 with runners in scoring position until Barrero hit a homer off reliever Joely Rodríguez that was headed out of Fenway Park before bouncing off one of the light standards above the Green Monster in left.

Raimel Tapia had three of Boston's 14 hits and drove in a pair of runs. The Red Sox lost their second straight and have dropped six of eight.

Barrero, who entered the game in the fourth after TJ Friedl left with a tight hamstring, also made a big defensive play with a nice throw from center that helped keep Boston off the board in the fifth.

Benson said Berrero was impressive all around, especially coming off the bench in the fourth and delivering with the bases loaded in the seventh.

Today's Puzzle Solved

Former in-law's contact riles hurt feelings

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I had a wonderful relationship with my in-laws while my ex-husband and I were married. However, following our divorce, he and I no longer speak.

He's also asked me NOT to reach out or talk to his family.

His sister and his father have respected his wishes and have never reached out to me. Honestly, I found this very hurtful.

His mother called a few times over the past year, mostly around the holidays, and each time it was difficult and painful to talk to her.

I never initiated any communication.

At Christmas she left me a voicemail crying about how much she missed me and missed having her family together. She implied that I wasn't doing well, and that hurt my feelings, too.

I did not call her back and have not talked to her since.

Around Easter, she sent a card, noting how much she missed me and how much she loved me.

Again, I did not respond, but she did ask my son during a visit if I ever received a card from her. She did the same on Mother's Day.

I find it to be very hurtful.

I also want to lash out AT her and let her know just exactly how much pain, abuse and toxic behavior her son put me through.

I know it's not right to do that, but I don't know how to handle this.

Should I continue to ignore the cards? Send them back, marked "return to sender", or should I send her a response, politely telling her goodbye?

– Upset Ex

Dear Ex: It hurt when your former father and sister-in-law respected your ex's demand and didn't contact you. Your former mother-in-law is defying her son's demand. This hurts, too.

It's like the song says: Love hurts. Lost love hurts more.

Your former mother-in-law may be aware of what a toxic jerk her son is, and this is her way of trying to make amends. Her life might have been better with you on the scene to smooth over the family's rough dynamic. She might have missed opportunities to defy him and defend you, and she is trying to make up for that now.

Plus, you were part of her family, and she is experiencing a loss that looms very large for her.

You seem indifferent to the possibility that your lack of response is punishing her.

You should respond now by sending her a card, thanking her for years of friendship and for being a good grandparent to your child.

Time to sell a gift that has outlived a friendship

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: Eighteen months ago, a friend gave me two highly collectible vintage items. I had always loved them, and she said she didn't care for them anymore.

About a year ago she abruptly moved across the country to live with her boyfriend, and cut all contact with everybody; it's clear that she has no intention of speaking with me again.

I still have the items she gave to me, and while I do like them, since our relationship ended on a sour note I don't want to keep them.

I want to sell them, since they're quite valuable (about $800 for the pair), but to complicate things I'm really great friends with her brother, "James," who still lives in my city.

James and his sister shared the items in childhood (a gift from their mother), and so I'm feeling torn. Would it be rude of me to sell them? I don't think he has any interest in keeping them (his sister told me this), and they'd probably just get put in storage.

Should I give him a portion of the money, or ask permission to sell them?

Is it OK to just sell them and keep the money?

– Deliberating

Dear Deliberating: These items were given to you and, because they are now your property, you have the right to sell them.

However, since you still have a very close relationship with one of the members of this family, the ethical thing to do is to offer these items to him.

Tell "James" that because your relationship with his sister seems to have faded, you wonder if he would like to have these family heirlooms. Even if you suspect he wouldn't display them, he might choose to pass them along to a child – or another family member.

If James tells you he's not interested, you should tell him you'd like to sell them. Transparency will help to preserve your close friendship with him. Whether to share the money with him is a judgment call – it's not necessary to offer.

Regarding the larger question, you need to ask yourself how you would feel if a close friend of yours sold a memento from your childhood without at least running it past you first.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Compromise sometimes means leaving everybody a little bit unhappy. Trying to force a deal where you get everything you want possibly means there can be no deal at all. Be willing to accept only part of your wish list.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Let them know just how good you are and remind them of all you have achieved. The people you meet could be willing to give you a hand. It could be time to get details in writing while everyone agrees you are brilliant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Things may be coming to a head. It would be easier to lie your way through it, but the fallout when the truth is revealed could be so much worse. Honesty will make the consequences more manageable for everyone.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — A loved one may seem more materialistic than usual and might require your understanding. Take advantage of every opportunity to mend fences rather than complaining about whatever pulled them down.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You could feel buried under a mountain of urgency and need to consider getting more help on board. Delegation may be the key to breaking that mountain into manageable bits. Your people should be capable enough, work with them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Insisting on an immediate answer can be a sign of a scam. Whether work or romance, if someone doesn't give you time to think, there could be something wrong. Walk away from anything that seems too good to be true.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Your optimistic attitude should be tempered by caution and cleverness when your money is at stake. An innocent flirtation might be misunderstood so avoid any situation that could stir up someone's jealousy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Listen to your instincts. You could spend the pennies in your pocket on passing obsessions or produce ways to be more practical. By using your head, you can overcome setbacks and turn deficit into assets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Your attitude, positive or negative, can draw the same energies back to you and others may amplify the mood. Do your best to avoid being a puppet of someone else's agenda. Gain comfort from a special safe place.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Open your eyes to see where the money goes. You may be tempted to overspend or indulge in extravagant ways. Those in authority may expect you to perform according to exceedingly lofty standards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Encouragement from loved ones can help you explore and develop your ideas into reality. Getting wrapped up in new plans could make it easy to ignore debts and obligations until you become swamped by the pile.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Think or sink. Your ability to sympathize with people who are less fortunate can be a blessing, but always watch out for tactics designed to manipulate your emotions. Balance kindness with caution.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — If you try to hide mistakes, they could grow in the darkness. Secrets lose their power when brought out into the light. If you've made an error, learn what to do differently next time and turn it into a learning experience.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You might be worried about your most important relationships, but obsessing or driving yourself crazy is not healthy. Step back and determine whether energy has truly shifted, or if it's only your fears and insecurities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Your money may be moving in interesting ways. It is not time to panic, but it can be time to keep a closer eye on where your money goes. Weigh the advice from experts before you make any decisions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — A loved one's ambitions may be tending toward obsession. While they are getting themselves twisted up, it can fall to you to help them find balance. Your love and support can allow them to expand and grow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Respecting your work-life balance requires making choices that keep you sufficiently on an even keel, but may sometimes push you away from family. The choices may be hard now, but you will always make it home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Moneymaking ventures may not be all they seem. Research all investment opportunities thoroughly to prevent your dollars from lining someone else's pockets. Helping a friend can be a place where your money will do the most good

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Your potential partner for date night may seem perfect on paper or check every box. While everyone can have good intentions, there might be unpleasant surprises ahead. Have a plan in place to give you the option of a graceful exit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Not all invitations are welcome, but some cannot be refused. Adjust your attitude and accept gracefully. Do your best and remember every day eventually ends. You may see the point in playing the game soon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — It can feel like the people around you are intentionally being irritating and blocking your path. Before you react, cut them some slack. Remember they are just doing the best they can with what they've got.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — A casual friendship might become a lot less casual if you let your guard down; allow the universe to show you the way. Whether it fades back into a friendship or grows into something serious might be up to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Invisible is your word for the day. All the ingredients for an explosion are bubbling around you and a careless word could light the fuse. Try to stay calm. In a few days, everything should settle down.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — "I may not have explained it well," will get you farther than "Why don't you understand?" An accusation can turn into a power struggle. Accepting responsibility for your piece will let you resolve the issues in partnership.

Churchill Downs implements new safety standards

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — Churchill Downs will limit horses to four starts during a rolling eight-week period and impose ineligibility standards for continued poor performance in the wake of the recent deaths of 12 horses at the home of the Kentucky Derby.

Other safety initiatives announced by Churchill Downs on Thursday include pausing incentives, such as trainer start bonuses and purse payouts to every race finisher, with payouts limited to the top five finishers. Churchill Downs officials say they'll continue talks with horsemen to determine how to allocate funds.

The measures take effect immediately and follow a special meeting between Churchill Downs officials and horsemen based at the track and its trackside training center. Horse racing's federally created oversight authority had convened an emergency summit this week with Churchill Downs and Kentucky's racing commission to examine the troubling spate of deaths. All but two deaths have been attributed to racing or training leg injuries. The other two are from unknown causes, but all are being investigated by the Kentucky Horse Racing Commission and Horseracing Integrity and Safety Authority (HISA).

A release from Churchill Downs stated that

Edey returning to school at draft deadline

Kentucky's Tshiebwe stays in

BY AARON BEARD
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

Purdue's Zach Edey decided it was the right call to go back to school instead of staying in the NBA draft. His predecessor as national player of the year, Kentucky's Oscar Tshiebwe, is sticking with his pro pursuit.

And Connecticut's reign as NCAA champion will begin with multiple starters having left for the NBA draft and one returning after flirting with doing the same.

The 7-foot-4 Edey and UConn guard Tristen Newton were among the notable names to announce that they were withdrawing from the draft Wednesday, the NCAA's deadline for players who declared as early entrants to pull out and retain their college eligibility.

Edey's decision came Wednesday night, in social media posts from both the center and the Boilermakers program that earned a No. 1 seed in the NCAA Tournament behind Edey, The Associated Press men's national player of the year.

But Tshiebwe announced late in the afternoon that he would remain in the draft after a college career that included being named the AP national player of the year in 2022.

For the current champions, Newton (10.1 points, 4.7 assists, 4.5 rebounds) is returning after being one of four Huskies to declare for the draft after a run to UConn's fifth national championship in early April. He scored a game-high 19 points to go with 10 rebounds in the victory over San Diego State in the title game.

The others were Final Four Most Outstanding Player Adama Sanogo, wing Jordan Hawkins and versatile guard Andre Jackson Jr. Sanogo (17.8 points) and Hawkins (16.3) have made it clear they have closed the door on their college careers, while team spokesman Phil Chardis said Wednesday night that Jackson (6.1 points, 5.8 rebounds, 4.6 assists) would remain in the draft.

The Huskies have 247sports' No. 3-ranked recruiting class for next year to restock the roster, led by McDonald's All-American point guard Stephon Castle.

The NBA's withdrawal deadline is June 12, but is moot when it comes to college players returning to school due to the NCAA's earlier timeline to retain playing eligibility.

STAYING IN SCHOOL

TREY ALEXANDER: Creighton gets back a 6-4 guard who averaged 13.6 points and shot 41% from 3-point range in his first full season as a starter.

ADEM BONA: The 6-foot-10 forward and Pac-12 freshman of the year is returning to UCLA after starting 32 games as a rookie and averaging 7.7 points, 5.3 rebounds and 1.7 blocks — with coach Mick Cronin praising his toughness for "competing through multiple injuries for as long as he could" in a statement Wednesday.

EDEY: He averaged 22.3 points, 12.9 rebounds, 2.1 blocks and 1.5 assists while shooting 60.7% from the field. His presence alone helps Purdue be a factor in the Big Ten race.

JOSIAH-JORDAN JAMES: The 6-6 guard went through the NBA G League Combine and had workouts with multiple teams before opting to return to Tennessee for a fifth season alongside teammate Santiago Vescovi.

JUDAH MINTZ: The 6-3 freshman averaged 16.3 points and 4.6 assists for Syracuse, ranking third among Division I freshmen in scoring behind only Alabama's Brandon Miller and Lamar's Nate Calmese.

OWLS' RETURNEES: Florida Atlantic got good news after its surprise Final Four run with the return leading scorers Johnell Davis (13.8) and Alijah Martin (13.4). ESPN first reported their decisions, while Martin later posted a social media statement.

TERRENCE SHANNON JR.: Illinois got a big boost with Shannon announcing his return Wednesday night in a social media post. The 6-6 guard is returning for a fifth college season after averaging 17.2 points.

SPARTANS' RETURNEES: Michigan State announced that guards Jaden Akins and A.J. Hoggard have withdrawn from the NBA draft. Standout guard Tyson Walker had previously withdrawn in April, setting up Tom Izzo to have five of his top scorers back.

GOING PRO

KOBE BROWN: Missouri's 6-8 swingman opted against returning for a fifth college season after being an AP first-team all-Southeastern Conference pick averaging 15.8 points last season.

JAYLEN CLARK: The third-year UCLA guard averaged 13.0 points and 6.0 rebounds while leading the Pac-12 with 2.6 steals en route to being named Naismith national defensive player of the year. Cronin called him a winner with strong intangibles who made UCLA "a better program because he chose to be a Bruin."

BRICE SENSABAUGH: The Ohio State freshman averaged 16.3 points and 5.4 rebounds in 31 games before missing his final two in the Big Ten Tournament due to a knee injury. He's a potential first-round prospect.

TSHIEBWE: The 6-9, 260-pound forward is a tough interior presence who led the country in rebounds for two straight seasons (15.1 in 2022, 13.7 in 2023) while racking up 48 double-doubles. But he faces an uncertain next stop and is projected at best as a second-round prospect.

Don't Put Your Money Under the Mattress - There Are Other Options

"Numerous options exist for a safe place to keep your money; the secret is finding the best return without any exposure to risk." Steve Dybwad

Layin It On The Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/ Wealth Management

Insulating your money against inflation, theft or catastrophe is as simple as taking it out from underneath your mattress and opening a savings account. The three most common are transactional savings accounts, money market accounts, and certificates of deposit. Two alternative accounts are high yield savings and specialty savings accounts. They all operate under the same premise: money given to the bank will earn interest.

Traditional Transactional Savings Accounts

The simplest way to store money with a financial institution is to open a traditional savings account with a small minimum deposit. If the minimum is maintained, the account holder usually avoids fees. Shop around and compare factors like initial deposit and balance requirements, interest rates, and other fees. While being highly liquid makes it easy to withdraw cash and move funds between accounts, they typically have the lowest interest rates. Accounts are federally insured through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) or the National Credit Union Association (NCUA), protecting your savings from bank failures.

High Yield Savings Account

High yield savings accounts offer interest rates usually 20 to 25 times higher than the national average for transactional savings accounts. While potentially available at your local bank, the highest interest rates are typically offered by online banks. Electronic transfers between institutions are speedy and straightforward, making it easy to move your funds if needed. FDIC or NCUA also insures them. Keep in mind that banks offering high yield savings accounts do not typically provide checking accounts and other services like ATM cards.

Specialty Savings Account

Specialty savings accounts are specific to a particular savings goal. These include accounts you can open for children like savings accounts, student accounts, or 529 college savings accounts. Also included are home down payment savings accounts, health savings accounts, and traditional or Roth IRA's. These accounts generate interest and have either low or no maintenance costs. Be aware of strict and potentially costly regulations related to early withdrawal of funds. There are also specifics concerning who can open what type of account.

Money Market Account

Money market accounts typically offer higher interest rates than traditional savings accounts, .02% higher on average. This type of account is special in that you can write checks and use a debit card, like a checking account. However, there are limits to the amount of money and the number of withdrawals allowed. It's also not uncommon for higher minimum balance requirements and fees associated with money market accounts.

Certificate of Deposit (CD) FDIC Insured

A certificate of deposit, or CD, is an account with a fixed interest rate, term length, and maturity date. The fixed date means funds cannot be accessed early without penalty. These accounts typically pay higher rates than traditional savings accounts and are less liquid. The risk is very low, and the return is guaranteed, making it a safe place to store funds that you plan to use in the future.

Each of these accounts can help achieve your savings goals. Evaluate the pros and cons of each depending on your goals and financial situation. Be sure to explore various institutions for the best rates possible, and as always, consult a trusted financial advisor regarding any questions you may have.

California-based equine surgeon Ryan Carpenter presented trainers and veterinarians with information and tools about advanced interventions for certain injuries. The Churchill Downs' equine medical director, Will Farmer, said there was "a duty" to offer information from someone who experienced similar challenges recently in California.

He said in the release that decisions regarding the long-term well being of horses must be first and foremost. "It is imperative that all available, educated and informed options can be efficiently, confidently and thoroughly relayed to the owners."

Louisville-born trainer Brad Cox said he did "a lot of listening" at the meeting and left it at that.

"I think Churchill is trying to dot every I and cross every T," Cox said during a NTRA teleconference. "It's been a lot of stuff happening since the meet began and hopefully we're kind of coming to the end of this."

The ineligibility measure impacts horses losing by more than 12 lengths in five consecutive starts. They cannot race at Churchill Downs until approved by Farmer to return.

Seven horses died in the days leading up to the 149th Kentucky Derby on May 6, including two on the undercard. Five horses have died since then, including two 7-year-olds last weekend from similar leg injuries.

Churchill Downs is scheduled to resume its spring meet on Thursday night.

HISA veterinary teams reviewed information and analysis on Tuesday. Track superintendent Dennis Moore began a second independent analysis of Churchill Downs' training and racing surface on Wednesday.

Cox said he felt comfortable training at Churchill Downs and added, "I feel it's a safe surface."

Synthetic surfaces gaining traction

BY BETH HARRIS
AP RACING WRITER

Dirt flying as horses race around the track. Fans cheering as their favorite thunders down the stretch, hooves pounding toward the finish line.

That sight and sound has disappeared from some North American racetracks that have replaced traditional dirt with a synthetic surface made of wax-coated sand, fibers and recycled rubber. It mutes hoofbeats and limits whatever kickback might fly in the faces of trailing horses.

From owners to trainers to jockeys to bettors, the debate is vigorous on whether synthetic surfaces are a potential answer to creating safer training and racing conditions. The deaths of 12 horses at Churchill Downs, including two on Kentucky Derby day, in the last month have reignited public outcry about what horse racing is doing to prevent catastrophic injuries.

Investigations of the Churchill deaths are underway, including necropsies on the horses and probes of the track's dirt surface.

Synthetic surfaces, known by such trademarked names as Tapeta and Polytrack, are gaining traction in some major racing locales.

Gulfstream Park in Florida added Tapeta in 2021 to go with its dirt and grass courses. Woodbine near Toronto switched from dirt to Polytrack and then to Tapeta in 2016.

In 2015, Turfway Park near Cincinnati was the first track in North America to install Polytrack and five years later replaced it with Tapeta. Tiny Presque Isle Downs near Erie, Pennsylvania, has a Tapeta track.

Statistics from The Jockey Club's Equine Injury Database show the surface with the fewest deaths per 1,000 horses is synthetic.

From 2009-2022, there were 534 fatalities on synthetic from 482,169 starts or 1.11 per 1,000 starts. During that same period, there were 6,036 fatalities on dirt from 3,242,505 starts or 1.86 per 1,000 starts. And on grass, there were 1,032 fatalities from 728,445 starts or 1.41 per 1,000 starts.
